

Nigeria-China Relations: Stakeholder Calls For Legal Collaboration

Nigerian legal practitioners have been urged to collaborate with their Chinese counterparts to address emerging legal challenges in investment frameworks. The call was made by a Nigerian journalist John Azu in Abuja during the presentation of his book, "Contemporary Legal Cooperation: China and Africa – A Comparative Survey of Legal Systems." Mr. Azu, a judiciary correspondent, highlighted the absence of Nigerian representation at key legal conferences organised by the Chinese government, which have previously included participants from South Africa, Tanzania, Ghana, and Kenya. "I was privileged to interact with Chinese lawyers and participate in conferences aimed at fostering cooperation with African lawyers. Voice of Nigeria.

Ethio-China Friendship and Cooperation Committee Pledges to Promote Ethiopia's Coffee Globally

The Ethio-China Friendship and Cooperation Committee has vowed to work on various initiatives, including promoting Ethiopia's coffee on the global stage, according to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. State Minister of Foreign Affairs, Ambassador Mesganu Arga, held discussions with senior members of the Ethio-China Friendship and Cooperation Committee today. Betty Xu, Chairperson of the Ethio-China Friendship and Cooperation Committee shared that during her previous visits to Ethiopia, she observed Ethiopia's vast investment opportunities. Ethiopian News Agency.

Chinese navy hospital ship "Peace Ark" makes technical stop in Algeria

The Chinese navy hospital ship "Peace Ark," currently on the Mission Harmony-2024, arrived at Algiers Port in Algeria on Thursday for a five-day technical stop. At around 10 a.m. local time (09:00 GMT), the ship docked at Algiers Port. The ship's crew assembled on the deck, waving to the crowd that had gathered to welcome them. The ship was received at the port by Algerian military officials, staff from the Chinese Embassy in Algeria and other representatives. CGTN.

Xi Jinping visits Morocco, meets crown prince

Chinese President Xi Jinping landed in Morocco on Thursday for a "brief visit," according to Moroccan state media. Xi was welcomed in Casablanca by Crown Prince Moulay El Hassan, which Morocco's state news agency MAP called a reflection of strong bonds of friendship, cooperation and solidarity between the two countries. Xi then met Aziz Akhannouch, head of the Moroccan government, and went on to receive honors by the Royal Guard. The Chinese president made the visit after his trip to Brazil for the G20 Summit. Deutsche Welle.

China set to further ties with Morocco

President Xi Jinping has underscored China's commitment to supporting Morocco in maintaining its national security and stability, and expressed the country's willingness to work with the North African nation to continue to firmly support each other on issues concerning their own core interests. Xi made the remarks on Thursday evening during a meeting with Moroccan Crown Prince Moulay El Hassan in Casablanca, where he made a technical stopover on his way back to China after the 19th G20 Summit and a state visit to Brazil. Upon instructions from King Mohammed VI, the crown prince and Moroccan Prime Minister Aziz Akhannouch received Xi at Mohammed V International Airport, where a welcoming ceremony was held. China Daily.

Chinese President Xi Jinping Concludes Brief Visit to Morocco

Chinese President Xi Jinping concluded his visit to Morocco on Friday afternoon, departing from Mohammed V International Airport in Casablanca. The brief visit aimed to reinforce the growing cooperation between Morocco and China. The Chinese leader was seen off at the airport by Morocco's Head of Government, Aziz Akhannouch. A ceremonial guard of honor from Morocco's Royal Navy was also present for the occasion. Senior Moroccan officials, including Mohamed Mhidia, Wali of the Casablanca-Settat region, and Abdellatif Maazouz, President of the Casablanca-Settat Regional Council, also bid farewell to the Chinese leader. Morocco World News.

Envoy: China, Morocco foster synergy under BRI

China and Morocco share a longstanding positive relationship, with the synergy fostered under the Belt and Road Initiative holding great promise for both nations, said Abdelkader El Ansari, Morocco's ambassador to China. Ambassador El Ansari, who began his tenure in February, has visited several places across China, including Shandong province and the Inner Mongolia autonomous region. "Everywhere I've visited, I've seen significant dynamism, growth and ongoing projects. It reflects a national momentum," El Ansari told China Daily. "The infrastructure and major companies I've visited across various provinces highlight the tremendous potential for deeper economic cooperation between our two countries. This aligns perfectly with Morocco's role in the Belt and Road Initiative." Ecnscn.