Chinese expert's "lifelong mission" to cultivate oasis in Mauritania's desert

During China's Spring Festival holiday, Zhang Hong'en and his colleagues remained far from home, fully dedicated to their work at the Livestock Demonstration Center in Mauritania. The center housed nearly 400 head of cattle, while the experimental plantations of Juncao grass and alfalfa required constant care. From Nouakchott, the capital of Mauritania, a desert highway leads to the village of Idini, where the center is located. Upon entering, the harsh sandy landscape suddenly gives way to a scene full of vitality. A fountain sits at the center of a roundabout, while spacious, smooth cement roads extend in various directions. Peacocks stroll leisurely and tortoises move at their own pace. Xinhua.
